22 Known Dead In Pittsburgh Explosion

Death Toll Mounts as Rescuers Dig Into Ruins of Homes and Factories—Begin Investigations Into Cause of Blast—Loss Will Run Into Millions—Rescue Workers Prove Themselves Heroes.

Pittsburgh, Nov. 15 (AP).—The death toll as a result of yesterday's disastrous gas tank blast on the lower north side here mounted today as rescuers dug their way into the ruins of homes, factories, warehouses and industrial plants. While few crews labored throughout the night, seeking to clear away some of the debris, the real work of recovering bodies did not begin until daylight.

Digging into the ruins of one structure, the rescuers brought out the body of an unidentified man, making the known dead 22.

One fatal accident occurred in the [illegible] during the morning. Frank [illegible]pperle, engaged in moving twisted steel, was killed when reinforcing steel fell upon him. Anthony Cayne and John Wise, also working on the ruins, were injured when struck by steel beams.

Fire department officials believed that at least seven additional bodies would be found, six in the wrecked building of the Pittsburgh Clay Pot plant, and one inside the mass of twisted ruins that had been the mammoth gas reservoir.

500 Treated in Hospitals.

Twenty-two known dead, fourteen of them identified, had been located this morning. Fifty more were missing. More than 500 injured had been treated in eight hospitals.

While fresh rescue workers relieved the tired men who had labored throughout the night by aid of searchlights and flashlights, property owners sought to estimate the cost in dollars. No responsible official or business man, however, would make a more accurate guess than that the loss would run into millions of dollars. The damage to the gas tank which exploded, and the two beside it, is in excess of $1,-000,000. All about the tanks, factories and houses were a twisted mass of wreckage. Plate glass worth $50,000 was shattered, some of it several miles from the scene of destruction.

Daylight today found fifteen firemen and police still hard at the task of searching the ruins for bodies of men believed to have been trapped in cellars and beneath debris of fallen buildings. Dangerously swaying walls were pulled down and the Ohio river was dredged for possible victims.

Begin Investigations.

Coroner W. J. McGregor and the state public service commission began investigations of the cause of the blast. The secret, however, may rest with the 13 men employes of the Ritner-Conley Company, who were at work overhauling one of the three tanks when the explosion occurred. The entire repair crew was believed to have met death. This tank had been empty for months. The men were working with blow torches and it is thought that a residue of gas was ignited, resulting in a minor explosion which ignited great quantities of gas leaking from vents made by the first blast in the other tanks.

Witnesses said a great ball of fire soared hundreds of feet into the air. The whole sector was bombarded with pieces of steel, falling like shrapnel. Windows and walls cracked and tall buildings shook more than a half mile from the scene. The report could be heard for miles. Nine hundred telephone lines were put out of commission, water mains burst.

Almost before the real significance of the disaster had come home to the city, rescue work was being organized and relief was being rushed to the stricken district.

Many Heroes.

Policemen and firemen proved themselves heroes by rushing into the heart of the trouble and while roofs were falling and walls collapsing carried women and children out of their wrecked homes. Fire apparatus, private automobiles and commercial vehicles were utilized to rush injured to the hospitals. Houses were procured for injured. Though streets flooded by water escaping from broken mains, the rescue workers plunged to aid people lying unconscious in their yards or [illegible] where they were hurled.

Fires started in some of the wrecked homes and in one case five persons were carried, stunned, out of their burning house. Another woman who had been struck by falling plaster and was lying beside a leaking gas main was saved. A pair of twins who had been blown from their home and deposited still in their crib, in a back yard were rescued.

Pathetic Scenes.

Some of the most pathetic scenes of a day of tragedy were enacted at the entrances of the morgue and at various hospitals where relatives of victims congregated. Only those who might be able to identify victims were permitted to view the bodies or see the injured.

Insurance companies announced that most of the loss would be borne by individual property owners as the damage was due to the explosion, which is not covered in the standard fire insurance policies.

Tariff Change Is No Remedy

For the Problem Which Confronts Agriculture in Opinion of President—Believe Change Would Work Against Farmer.

Washington, Nov. 15 (AP).—President Coolidge feels that the problem which confronts agriculture would not be aided by a reduction of the tariff.

This was made clear today at the White House where it was said Mr. Coolidge had not an opportunity to thoroughly study the reports of a commission headed by Charles Nagel, former assistant secretary of commerce which recommended a revision of tariff and railroad rates as a means of helping the farmer by enabling him to purchase and transport his products more cheaply. It was added, however, that the President is of the opinion that any change in the tariff would work against the farmer rather than in his favor.

Fined for Driving While Intoxicated

Joseph Achabot of Poughkeepsie Arrested for Driving While Intoxicated, is Fined $200 in Police Court.

Joseph Achabot, 43, of 126 Church street, Poughkeepsie, was arrested for driving a car while intoxicated Monday evening after he had driven his automobile into two other cars on Washington avenue. The arrest was made by Officer Schick.

The car of Leona Van Demark of 159 Hurley avenue was parked at the curb on Washington avenue as Achabot crashed into it. His car then struck the automobile of George Fleming of 238 Washington avenue.

Unable to furnish bail, the Poughkeepsie man was lodged in the county jail for the balance of the night. This morning he was arraigned before Judge Shufeldt in police court and entered a plea of guilty to the charge. He said it was the first time he had ever been arrested for driving while intoxicated.

Judge Shufeldt imposed a fine of $200.

Oil Case Thrown Into New Field

Committee Will Determine if Court Should Have Decrees Against Persons Who Brought a Halt to the Case.

Washington, Nov. 15 (AP).—The Sinclair oil jury tampering investigation was thrown suddenly into a new field today by Justice Frederick L. Siddons, who moved to determine if there had been criminal contempt of his court in the chain of circumstances which led him to declare a mistrial in the conspiracy case against Harry F. Sinclair and Albert B. Fall.

While the grand jury continued investigating the activities of the Burns detectives in shadowing the trial jury, District Attorney Gordon himself was placed on a committee of three to determine whether the court should have decrees against the persons who brought a sensational halt to the Teapot Dome case.

John E. Laskey, a former district attorney, and James S. Easby-Smith, prominent Washington lawyer, were named as his fellow assistants, with instructions to investigate thoroughly and prosecute if necessary.

Justice Siddons based his order on the affidavits filed with him containing remarks attributed to Juror Edward J. Kidwell to the effect that he expected an "automobile a block long" at the end of the trial, and outlining the activities of the Burns agents in shadowing the jury.

Meanwhile District Attorney Gordon today sent before the grand jury, Charles G. Ruddy, chief of the Burns men brought there for the shadow work. William J. Burns and W. Sherman Burns also came to court in an effort to disprove charges of William V. McMullin, a Burns man, that testimony was fabricated by Burns agents, but the "mystery man" offered by McMullin to furnish additional details to the government proved not so important as expected and may not be called.

While the grand jury was in session, counsel for Kidwell served notice on Mr. Gordon that he will ask for a hearing next Friday on a motion of Kidwell for a contempt rule against J. Ray Akers, street car conductor, and on Don K. King, newspaper reporter, who talked with Kidwell and then made affidavits to the court.

Kidwell denied charges against him and asserted that if any contempt was committed it was by King and Akers in persisting to talk with him about the case.

Judge Shufeldt informed him he had heard that promise made before. As the wife refused to press any charge Mike was discharged.

John Albrecht of 123 Hunter street, arrested by his wife Monday and turned over to the police on a charge of disorderly conduct, was discharged on his promise to leave his family alone.

New High Record For State Budget

Highways, Public Education and Salaries Will Be Chiefly Responsible For The Increase Governor Indicates.

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 15 (AP).—New York state's first executive budget is expected to give an upward boost of approximately $30,000,000 to the appropriations for the support of the state government. The total of the appropriations is estimated at from $240,000,000 to $250,000,000.

Highways, public education and salaries will be chiefly responsible for the increases, Governor Smith indicated today in outlining what he expects the budget will show. Although the governor did not attempt to estimate the aggregate sum which he will ask the Legislature to appropriate, he let it be known that the budget will set a new high record.

Appropriations this year totaled $211,704,704. The executive budget procedure, approved by the electorate a week ago today, and special appropriations are certain to send the total for next year far above the existing record figure.

Under the provisions of the executive budget amendment to the state constitution, the governor is required to recommend new sources of taxation to the Legislature whenever additional revenue is needed to meet appropriations. It is believed that the state will not have sufficient money for the proposed appropriations unless some new revenue source is tapped, and this, in all probability, will be in the form of a tax on gasoline.

Public education is directly responsible for an increase of $5,000,-000 in the appropriations. Under the terms of the Friedsam Commission bill, passed by the 1927 Legislature, there is a mandatory increase of $6,500,000 for state aid to public schools and a further increase of $2,500,000, to be applied to teachers' salaries. Increased appropriations are also scheduled for highways, hospitals and penal institutions.

Mrs. Corson Swam Half Way Across

Waters of the Hudson River Proved Too Chilly for English Channel Swimmer and She Was Taken Into Launch When Part Way Over.

Mrs. Millie Gade Corson, who swam the English Channel, found the waters of the Hudson River too cold this morning, and after she swam about half way across the river, she was taken from the water into the launch that accompanied her on her attempt to swim from Rhinecliff to the ferry slip in the Rondout creek.

Mrs. Corson is appearing in a swimming act at the Broadway Theatre, today and Wednesday and announced she would attempt to swim the Hudson river.

She made the trip to Rhinecliff accompanied by the two swimming women stars who appear with her in the act and by Manager Harry Lazarus of the theatre.

A large crowd had gathered at the ferry slip to greet the swimmer and several policemen had been assigned to duty there to keep the traffic moving. As the launch drew in to the shore one of the woman stars announced that owing to the extreme coldness of the water Mrs. Corson had been forced to abandon her attempt after getting about half way across the river.

As Mrs. Corson emerged from the cabin of the launch she was greeted with applause. She was still shivering from her contact with the cold water of the river.

Manager Lazarus, who was on board the launch, stated that the temperature of the water was 25 degrees, and when he noticed that Mrs. Corson was suffering from the extreme cold he insisted that she leave the water. The thermometers along the Strand registered 50 degrees on shore.

Traver Ill, Court Postpones Trials

District Attorney Traver Unable to Appear in County Court—Several Defendants Plead Guilty But Sentence is Deferred—Murray to Try Cases Thursday.

When county court convened this morning at 10 o'clock William [illegible] Glass, grand jury stenographer, appeared and announced that District Attorney Traver had been taken suddenly ill and was unable to appear in court. Consequently several matters which were to be disposed of were delayed in so far as sentencing defendants who entered pleas of guilty was concerned.

The trial of criminal matters, however, was set for Thursday morning at 10 o'clock when the jury will return. Assistant District Attorney Murray will prosecute the cases in the absence of Mr. Traver.

Pleads Guilty to Manslaughter.

The trial of the indictment against Guiseppe Stagliero, indicted for murder, second degree, was moved by The People. Walter J. Miller, who appeared for the defendant, stated that the defendant wished to change his former plea of not guilty to the crime charged and enter a plea of guilty to manslaughter, first degree. The plea was accepted by the court and Judge Fowler postponed sentencing the defendant until November 22, when Mr. Traver could be present. The charge grows out of an old offense at East Kingston several years ago when the defendant disappeared. Later he was located in prison and on his discharge was apprehended by the local authorities, and brought back to Ulster county to stand trial to the charge of murder.

Peter Fattorino, charged with keeping a disorderly house, changed a former plea of not guilty to guilty of the crime charged. Walter J. Miller also appeared for Fattorino and imposition of sentence was postponed until the January term of Court. Bail was continued.

Benjamin Washington, who entered a plea of not guilty, also changed his plea and entered a plea of guilty to assault, third degree. Benjamin was given six months in the county jail.

Eva Williams, colored, charged with keeping a disorderly house, entered a plea of guilty to the charge under an information filed with the court. Eva, who hails from the lower section of the city, is 23 years old. Sentence in her case was postponed until Thursday.

Court Recesses Until Thursday.

The court then went into recess until Thursday morning at 10 o'clock. Deputy County Clerk Walter G. Geroldsek was notified by the court to communicate with as many jurors as possible and notify them not to attend court Wednesday morning as they had previously been notified, but to have them in court Thursday morning at 10 o'clock.

The witnesses in the case of The People vs. Billy King were excused until the adjourned date. This case, one of robbery, will probably be the first case taken up for trial.

Boys Charged With Car Theft

Alexander Jeleniz and Frank Sessler Waived Examination and Are Held for Grand Jury on Charge of Stealing Gasoel's Auto.

Alexander Jeleniz, 15, and Frank Sessler, 15, arrested Monday by Officer Keresman, who charged them with grand larceny in the first degree in stealing the Auburn sedan owned by Meyer Gasoel of 23[illegible] [illegible] avenue, waived examination when arraigned before Judge Shufeldt in police court today and were held to await the action of the next grand jury.

Sunday night Mr. Gasoel parked his auto on Broadway near M[illegible] street, and when he returned for it the car had disappeared. He reported the theft to the police.

Monday the car was found wrecked on the Emery Freer property at Esopus. The auto had been run through a hedge and had collided with a large tree and then upset against another tree. That the occupants escaped uninjured is considered a miracle by those who saw the position of the wrecked car.

Following the arrest of the two boys they were closely questioned by the police and are said to have signed written statements of the affair. According to the police the boys stated that they had taken the car intending to drive to New York city seeking jobs.

As they drove along the road they opened it up to see how fast the car could travel and as a result lost control and the car shot off the road on to the Freer property. One of the boys was able to crawl from under the upset car but his companion was unable to free himself unaided, and the other worked until he managed to pull him from under the car. Neither one was injured, although somewhat bruised.

Both boys reside downtown.

The finger prints do not belong to any of the three men who were captured by Obregon's aides. As one of those under arrest, Francisco Olivero, who claims to have been an innocent bystander, has apparently succeeded in establishing his innocence, police are hunting for two men who managed to escape.

Heads of U. S. Chamber of Commerce and American Federation of Labor Urge Member Organizations and Individual Business Men and Workers to Support Red Cross Membership Enrollment

THE nation's business and industry, as represented by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States of America, and the American Federation of Labor, has expressed anew its confidence in the American Red Cross, and heartily commends the record of service of the Red Cross in the past year.

The leaders of both the National Chamber and the Federation of Labor have called upon the member organizations of the two bodies, and the individual business leaders and workers to respond to the Red Cross appeal for a membership of 5,000,000.

President Lewis E. Pierson of the Chamber of Commerce, in a letter to organization members throughout the country, points out that the demands upon the Red Cross have increased year by year, and are still increasing. To meet these demands, he states, requires the support of the large, popular membership, an effective organization and large resources.

"The Chamber of Commerce of the United States of America is heartily in sympathy with the national and international work of this great organization and bespeaks the generous cooperation of the business men of the Nation," continues President Pierson. "You will, I am confident, rally to this call and lend every possible support to the Red Cross in its annual membership campaign which is to be conducted throughout the country in the period between November 11 and 24."

President William Green of the Federation of Labor, in a communication addressed to officers and members of International and National Unions, State Federations of Labor and City Central bodies affiliated with the A. F. of L., tells of the desire of the Red Cross to enroll 5,000,000 members this year. He says:

"We know that in the past year the Red Cross has met its greatest test in peace time relief work in the Mississippi valley. For months we were thrilled by the speed, precision and competency with which it performed the tasks of rescue and relief. We were gratified that the workers of the Nation aided so generously in providing the Red Cross with the relief funds it required.

"The American Federation of Labor has confidence in The American National Red Cross. It is in sympathy with the national and international service of this great democratic organization. It has supported it gladly in the past. It will continue to express its faith as need requires. I urge every worker who can possibly do so to join the Red Cross during the annual roll call."

C. B. Hitchcock, who has been at the Kingston City Hospital for the past few weeks, where he underwent an operation for appendicitis, returned to his home in this village last Saturday.

George Smith Paul Smith and James Smith of this village each shot a deer last week.

The open season for hunting deer in this county closes today. A large number of bucks have been shot here during the season.

Carl Hanseman and his mother, of New York, have been spending the past week in the town at "The Minnisink."

A chicken supper will be held by the Ladies' Aid Society of the M. E. Church at the church hall on Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Dreyfus, who has been employed at the Pine Hill Arms for the past year or more, returned to their home in New York last Friday.

Service and Sunday school have been held in the M. E. Church Hall during the past few weeks, while the church was being newly painted and decorated.

While Paul Smith was out hunting for deer on Saturday he saw a large bear near the Rochester place and followed it for some distance, but was unable to get a shot at it.

Court of Last Resort

The park in any town is the court of last resort. More moot questions, legal and otherwise, are settled under the shade of the old elm trees in the park of the average town or village than in most courts of record. Characters are made and lost and family history is laid bare as the skeletons from the family closet are brought out and aired.—Stanbury (Mo.) Headlight.

We know what we like, don't we, Old Pipe!

PRINCE ALBERT, and plenty of it, huh? Well, we can justify that on any number of counts. It's more than mere preference. There are sound reasons for liking Prince Albert above anything else.

Take fragrance, for instance. P.A. has 'em all stopped there. Every time I open the tidy red tin, I get a brand-new thrill. A tobacco that smells like that would have to be good, if you ask me. Yes, Sir!

And then take taste. Every puff tells a man that P.A. is cool and refreshing, with a mellow-mildness that is a revelation. Mild, yes, but not wishy-washy. P.A.'s rich, full-bodied flavor balances its mildness and makes it a smoke!

But all the talk in the world won't do a man any good, unless he acts on it. A load of long-burning P.A. in the bowl of his pipe will tell him volumes—and in language he likes. It's the personal test that counts, after all. I don't believe I can add to that.

Not only quality, but quantity, too—TWO full ounces in every tin.

PRINCE ALBERT

McIntosh Hops Off for India

Report to Break World's Long Distance Record—Uses Fokker Monoplane, Princess Xenia.

Croydon, England, Nov. 15 (AP)—Capt. E. H. McIntosh, who made an unsuccessful attempt to fly from England to New York last summer, took off for India today on a non-stop flight in an effort to break the world's long distance record now held by Clarence Chamberlain and Charles A. Levine.

Captain McIntosh was accompanied by Bert Hinkler, test pilot, who made a world's long distance record in a small plane in a recent non-stop flight from London to Riga, Latvia.

Weather conditions were excellent when the Fokker monoplane, Princess Xenia, the same plane which Captain McIntosh used on his attempted transatlantic flight, took the air after a run of about half a mile and gradually disappeared with the escort of four Royal Air Force machines.

The Princess Xenia carries 800 gallons of gas. The British airmen plan to make their first landing somewhere in India, at least 4,000 miles from their starting point.

Coat of Silver Muskrat for Snappy Winter Days

Silver muskrat is one of the favorite furs used for winter coats that will be in evidence again this season. The model was posed by a prominent motion picture player.

Close-Fitting Effect Noted in Winter Hats

The present aspiration of the millinery creator is to make snuffers, not hats, and, dressed up in one of the late autumnal crowns without any brim, we take on the look of one of grandmother's brass candlesticks with its little peak of brass for the top, says a fashion writer in the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Having noted the eclipse of the hairline and of the one eyebrow, let us review the various shapes that lend luster to the millinery season. First of all, there's the skullcap. This was worn all last winter and throughout the summer by some of the very smartest women. That makes no difference. It's going to be worn some more. Of course, there is danger of its becoming too popular; of its becoming, in fact, the numbskull cap. Still, for a few months at least, we're going to have it in our midst.

Now, exactly what are the demands made upon one by this type of millinery? Well, first of all, youth. There are, of course, some middle-aged women—those who are slender and who have irreproachable or at least distinguished profiles—that come off very well from the ordeal. But as a rule, the skullcap is most becoming to the teens and twenties.

Perhaps one of the most flattering hats that can be worn by the woman who is no longer in the first bloom of youth is the cloche. This does not, of course, belong to the season's great triumvirate, which is composed of the skullcap, the cut brim, and the draped toque. Nevertheless, it is worn, and Ross Dexter, who is a perfect genius with the cloche, has some charming fall versions jammed down over one eye in the correct new manner. For example, she has designed a gray felt hat controlled by a band of black satin ribbon which is knot at the front with a motif of alternate rhinestone and crosses. This model is, by the way, endowed with a brim wider at the back than at the front.

Adorn Tulle Frocks With Frills, Ribbons, Posies

The frosty, airy beauty of tulle is brought out in a number of chic evening dresses. This is one of two types of dance frock that is especially attractive for dancing. The other is a softly clinging gown of chiffon or georgette.

Tulle is used in this season's models in frills made of double folds thickly gathered and sewn in overlapping rows from belt to hem. The foundation skirt itself is cut with a flare which gives an extremely bouffant effect with the tulle ruffles. The bodice of a frock of this sort is always quite simple, with a quaint little ruching to finish the decollete neck and armholes, or a footure added to form a berthe across the top. Usually, as in the Grouli designs, a large bow of satin or—this season—velvet ribbon or a garniture of flowers is added at one side of the waistline. No conception of dress for dancing has ever been presented that has the youthful beauty of these tulle frocks, with their frills, ribbons and posies.

"Bridge" Dress One of Paris' Fashion Ideas

Afternoon dresses, which Paris deems appropriate to revive in place of sports clothes, are often called bridge dresses this season.

The most usual form is a long sleeved, conservative dress of silk, lace or velvet. Often it is black and occasionally there is a formal, long sleeved jacket that can be slipped off when it is time to appear in dinner costume.

Underscant is a simple sleeveless dress of sheer silk.

Supervisors Meet To Canvass Vote

Organize As a Board of County Canvassers With Supervisor Young of Marlborough as Chairman—Committees Appointed.

The members of the Ulster county board of supervisors met at the supervisors' room in the court house, this city, at noon today and organized as a board of canvassers to canvass the vote cast at the general election held on November 8 for state and county officers and amendments.

The meeting was called to order by John A. Nook, chairman of the board of elections, who, after Mark Sampson, clerk of the board, had called the roll and noted nearly all the members present, stated the call had been made for the purpose of organization and that the first order of business was selection of a chairman.

On motion of Supervisor Frederick Davis of the town of Marbletown, Edward Young of the town of Marlborough was elected chairman. The oath was administered to him by Mr. Nook, then the members arose and Chairman Young administered the same oath to them.

A recess was then taken for ten minutes, after the meeting was reconvened Chairman Young named as committees as follows:

On receiving and examining returns—Shaw, Terwilliger, Quigley.

On reading returns—Stanbrough, Silvernail, Hamilton.

On tabulating returns—Heaton, Quigley, Terwilliger.

A recess was then taken until 2 p. m. when the committees began their work.

DEVITAL VAULT WILL HOLD 6,000 COATS

In the item in The Freeman about the new fur vault being built for Lennihal Brothers it was stated on Monday that the vault would have a capacity of 500 coats. Mr. Lennihal states that it should have read a capacity for 5,000 or 6,000 fur coats. The vault will be built in compartments to be rented out to customers taking furs in storage. Five heavy steel doors will protect the entrance, the compartments, which ing two tons, being purchased from the Hall Safe Company. The temperature in the vault will average four degrees below freezing supplied by a machine at the Carbondale Refrigeration Company, the low temperature being necessary to preserve the nature of the furs. The air will be kept absolutely dry and free from moisture as the machine has butcher fans that will discharge 2,000 cubic feet of air per minute. The vault is in a room in building from the store at 255 Wall street independent of the sales store. The dimensions are 20 feet wide, 45 feet long with height of 10 feet. Steel girders will support the roof of 12 inches thickness and the floor will be 24 inches thick of steel girders. The 24 inch walls of solid concrete will be reinforced with steel and the entire building will be lined with five inches of cork.

PLAN PARKING SPACE.

It is no joke to say that the greatest need of the average American city today is parking space. And the need is not being supplied. Commenting on the situation in a rapidly growing city, a banker tells of seeing half a dozen neighborhood business centers develop and collapse within 20 years. Tax rates and shifts of population may have had their influence, he admits, but he believes the leading cause was failure to provide parking facilities for the patrons of those business places.

New real estate developments seldom give any attention to the matter. It seems to be assumed that the same old arrangement will serve the purpose of the new day. But motor vehicles steadily increase, filling and overflowing available space, and police regulations gradually abolish available parking space on the streets. Thus no sooner is a store or neighborhood center established than the swollen traffic may begin to flow irresistibly past without stopping. Thus with many times the old number of people passing, there are fewer stopping to buy.

HEALTHFUL CHAIRS.

Office workers' health is being ruined by improper chairs, according to Dr. J. K. Garner, president of the American Association of Railway Surgeons. He doesn't mean that they all ought to have swivel chairs to lean back in, either. "For one spending the largest part of the working day seated at a desk", he says, "the ordinary chair is as unsuited as would be a full dress suit for swimming".

What kind of chair should there be, then? He says the seat should be about 16 inches wide and not more than 11 inches from front to back, and adjustable as regards its height above the floor. Also the back should be not more than five inches wide, and adjustable so as to provide support for the spine about two thirds of the way down, "at the junction of the dorsal and lumbar region".

It doesn't sound any too inviting, but Dr. Garner guarantees that it would save the present generation of office folk from "poor carriage, flat chests and prominent abdomens". If so, let the men have them by all means. The office girls for some reason or other don't seem to need them so much.

"UNKNOWN" TEACHERS.

As it is the "unknown soldier" who makes successful war possible, so it is the great body of "unknown" or untrumpeted teachers, the patient, intelligent daily workers in the class room, who lead, discipline and bring the light of knowledge to the country's youth, and send the rising generation forth prepared to take up the work which the older generation must gradually resign. It is to these obscure but faithful educators that Dr. Henry Van Dyke, in connection with "Open School Week," pays deserved tribute, without regard to sex, as follows:

I sing the praise of the unknown teacher. Great generals win campaigns, but it is the unknown soldier who wins the war. Famous educators plan new systems of pedagogy, but it is the unknown teacher who delivers and guides the young. For him no trumpets blare, no chariots wait, no golden decorations are decreed. He keeps the watch along the borders of darkness and makes the attack on the trenches of ignorance and folly. Patient in his daily duty, he strives to conquer the evil powers which are the enemy of youth. He awakens sleeping spirits. He quickens the indolent, encourages the eager and steadies the unstable. He communicates his own joy in learning and shares with boys and girls the best treasures of his mind. He lights many candles, which, in later years, will shine back to cheer him. This is his reward. Knowledge may be gained from books, but the love of knowledge can be transmitted only by personal contact. No one has deserved better of the Republic than the unknown teacher.

HISTORY NOT INFALLIBLE.

Mr. "Sport" Hermann, the Chicago politician appointed to tackle more than a million volumes in his city's public library and decide which should be burnt and which should be left on the shelves, has graciously approved the books of Albert Bushnell Hart, C. H. Van Tyne and Willis Mason. He says he has actually read their histories for he "looked through" them and thinks they are "all right". This must be welcome news in Chicago. It looked at first as if no literary work could measure up to Mayor Thompson's anglo-Iobian standards and Mr. "Sport" Hermann would have to write some new ones himself, a rather appalling prospect altogether apart from the production of books to be expected of him.

Mayor Thompson would [illegible] with Henry Ford's view that history is "bunk," but he would [illegible] assertion of a shrewd observer that "history depends on who writes it" for he insists that it [illegible] with Thom; man politics.

It is obvious that [illegible] ter who writes [illegible] be regarded as [illegible] tory of recent events [illegible] pends on who writes it [illegible] when it is written and in what country. It is one thing in the country of the victors after a war [illegible] thing in the country of the defeated. Even the history of past times is [illegible] for the scientific historian. A [illegible] headed modern historian, Prof. Trevelyan of Cambridge University, England, referring recently to the "verdict of history," pointedly observed that "on most points of real interest that verdict is not unanimous and is constantly being reversed."

THAT BODY OF YOURS

TWO KINDS OF DIZZINESS.

One of the uncomfortable feelings that often accompanies a lazy intestine or sluggish liver, is dizziness.

When you arise in the morning or get up from a chair, there is a lightness and dizziness that makes you seek some support for the moment.

Now as a matter of fact the real dizziness, or vertigo as it is called, is a sensation as if you or the room are turning 'round and round in a circle, and this is nearly always due to a disturbance of the balancing fluids in the ear. Of course disturbances in the brain itself cause dizziness also.

A British specialist tells us that the slight light headedness, or the feeling that the room is going up and down, is not usually due to ear disturbances, and that some other causes must be found for this type of dizziness.

However the dizzy feeling when the room or you seem to be going around, often occurs where there is no ringing in the ears, or actual deafness, and so the patient is apt to overlook the ears as a possible cause for it. He is likely to blame it on his liver.

And as this dizziness is often accompanied by a sick feeling or nausea, the liver is often naturally considered the cause of it. However, where nausea is worse in the morning, it is usually due to the ear disturbance, and the patient doesn't usually have any appetite for breakfast, but eats his other meals "heartily". As you know in bilious dizziness you not only do not want your breakfast, but you do not want any meals whatever. In fact the best treatment for bilious dizziness is to do without food entirely for a day or two.

So the point then is that a lightness of the head, a dizziness that is up and down, may be due to ear, liver, or digestive disturbance, whereas the dizziness that has you or the room going round and round, is practically always due to ear disturbance.

Your treatment should therefore be guided by the kind of dizziness that overtakes you.

If due to "biliousness" do without food for 36 to 48 hours; if due to the ear then consult an ear specialist without delay.

Mr. Depew of the Arbuckle Farms had been hunting on the mountain slope one afternoon this past week. Towards evening he gave his son the rifle and was returning home with the dog and a light shot gun. His dog scented something and rushed off ahead. The something turned out to be a fair sized brown bear. Mr. Depew was afraid to shoot at the animal as he knew his weapon was too light to do more than hurt the animal and a wounded bear will always charge anything in sight. He therefore refrained from shooting, consequently the bear is at large not far from town.

ELEANOR GUNN
On Fashions

From Her Suede Street Shoes to the U-Shaped Neckline of the Dinner Dress, the Winter Girl Pays Attention to Detail

New York—Uniformity is quite out fashion. Whether it be in their or their hosiery, women show a to be individual. One no longgets every pair of hose matching other pair, and while one still glibly of "nude hosiery", the usually includes many tones. dress wear, the average woman disinclined to give up light although with tailored suits seems reconciled to wearing gunand dark tones generally.

With all shades of brown regarded smart, footwear naturally follows color lead. Interest in novelty seems to quicken. There are pointed and eccentric effects on market sometimes in contrasting rs, and these appear to be gain- in favor.

Growing Interest in Suede.

For sports, motoring, and travel, rt shops find an increasing de- d for novelty silk and wool and stockings. These usually carry the color of the costume, or the or one wishes emphasized, and are n with shoes that harmonize or give the strong contrast result- from the use of black. On the inexhaustible subject of shoes, it may be said that there is a growing interest in suede, both alone and in combination with kid.

For evening, one may again adorn the instep with huge decorative buckles, or leave it unadorned and add a tiny rhinestone decoration at the side of the slipper. The opera pump is being reinstated, although strapped effects are by no means declasse. For street wear, the usual autumnal attempt to interest women in Oxfords is being put forth. As several are in clever open effects smartly tied, it does not seem unreasonable to feel that they should gain in prestige as the winter gets under way.

Softening Effect of Lace.

That one is permitted the refreshing touch of a lace or lingerie collar is one cause for thanksgiving. Many really smart dresses have a tiny yoke, or added collar treatment of lace, fashioned—let us say—of such harmonious types as Venice and Alencon.

There are bits of lace appearing below the elbow on some more or less frivolous frocks, usually of crepe satin, and, after the manner of Callot, other dresses have a cascade or jabot of warm ivory tinted laces falling from the left shoulder to the waist-line. These are usually introduced on dresses that have a square decollevage.

Most women are the prettier for a bit of softening lace about their throats, and with the world in league to feminize fashions, it naturally follows that a revival of lace will develop, or is developing. For evening there are any number of charming lace frocks, and lace is dominant in lingerie.

New Ideas in the Ensemble.

So insistent has been the demand for weaves that one is amazed at the scope, not only of their appeal, but of their utility. There are velvet sports dresses and velvet ball gowns; there is velvet for every purpose for which clothes are designed, and, what is more, a wide variety in the fabric itself. The craperable transparent types easily have the call. One judges the value of new fabrics at the moment by their ability to drape.

All reports from the midseason openings stress the ensemble. Incredible as it seems, new ideas are still being put forth in them. They are introduced in both formal and sports types, and run the gamut from soft materials to tweeds, with a prevailing tendency to combine two fabrics at least.

Cabled reports of the openings include as well as tid bits on ensembles, comment on the V-decolletage and the rise and fall of the waist-line.

BEAN HOLE BEANS

—with just the things you like best in baked beans

Brown sugar, molasses, sugar-cured prime pork and that wonderful "woods" flavor

The very words "baked beans" excite the appetite. But beans baked with brown sugar, molasses, sugar-cured prime pork and flavored with the fragrances of outdoor baking in the woods—could any appetite resist!

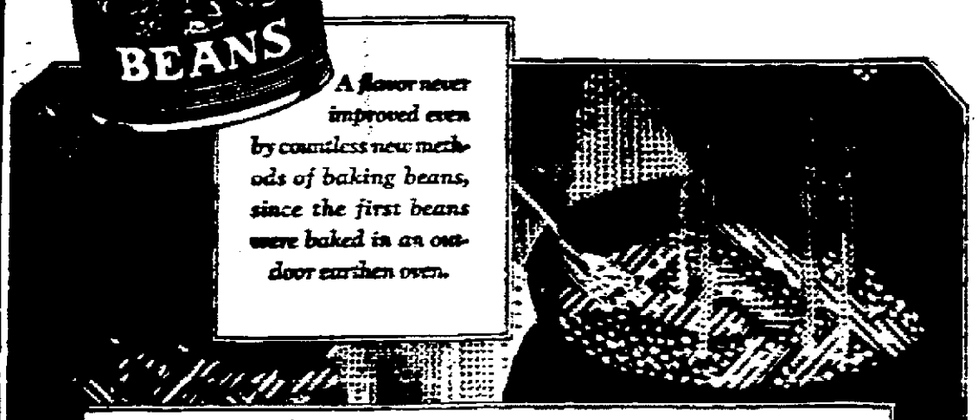
Many attempts have been made to equal the flavor of "bean hole" beans as prepared by logging-camp cooks in the Maine woods.

But until now no modern way has matched the result of the old-fashioned earthen outdoor oven.

This wonderful new product, Bean Hole Beans, for the first time exactly reproduces all the eating qualities of "bean hole" beans as baked in the Maine woods.

Begin tomorrow to enjoy this newest contribution to foods of flavor—really appetizing flavor! Two sizes—medium and large.

—without tomato sauce



A flavor never improved even by countless new methods of baking beans, since the first beans were baked in an outdoor earthen oven.

You don't know baked beans... beans with that wonderful "woods" flavor... if you haven't experienced the taste of beans like those baked in this outdoor earthen oven called the "bean hole" in the Maine woods

Kind of Business Clothes to Wear

Simple Garments, Cut Along Semi-Sports Lines, Are Most Appropriate.

You sometimes hear girls criticised because they dress too well. The phrase is inaccurate. No girl ever dresses too well. She may dress too elaborately, too conspicuously or out of proportion to her salary. But dressing too well is hard to do.

Any business girl, says the Woman's Home Companion, earns her living by the impression she makes on other people. She must convince her employer and her associates by her every gesture that she is able and alert.

She must dress well. She must be well groomed. Not even a genius can do without it.

A business office is a workroom and the clothes you wear there should look workmanlike. It's a similar theory to the one by which you choose sports clothes. Half-worn party dresses are inappropriate. Dresses that look as if they were made for matinees, dinner parties or afternoon teas are poorly chosen. Buy simple clothes cut along what are known as semi-sports lines—slightly more formal than regular outdoor sports clothes. Business clothes should be made of as good material as you can afford. Avoid fabrics that bag at the knees or stretch across the back when you sit down for long periods. Steer clear of fabrics that get shiny or that rumple easily. Do not buy clothes that are cut badly or made of materials that pull out at the seams or split under the arms. Avoid very short or tight skirts, very short sleeves and very low necks.

At any season of the year you should have at least two appropriate office dresses (to allow for cleaning) and one suitable coat. Suits are not so useful for business, for they entail several blouses and even then do not give the changes that two or three dresses give. Also the skirts get baggy and wear out long before the suit coats.

For this particular season tweed, wool, jersey and wool crepe are smart and suitable for business. The two dresses shown here selected are of a new novelty woolen with crepy weave (left) and of wool jersey and satin (right). The woolen crepe dress is a one-piece with the smart diagonal trimming effect and a belt of suede to match the suede shoulder flower. The skirt of a wool jersey dress is cleverly managed with plaits in front and tucks in back where you might slit out the plaits. In the upper part of the dress black satin is introduced, with an eye on the evening you stop in town to dine with Freddy and don't have to change your frock beforehand. Above a dinner table it looks like a smart little satin frock, but it's really much more practical.

Boudoir Pajamas Have Fur Cuffs About Ankles

The pajama has been transported from the beaches to the boudoir, but not, however, without some changes in style and material. The boudoir pajamas now are usually of velvet and elaborately fur trimmed. The black velvet trousers have cuffs of fur about the ankles, while the light colored jackets have fur collars and long fur revers. The wide sleeves are slit to the elbow and the inside is lined with the same fur as the collar.

Toques Predominating Type of Fall Headgear

Toques seem to be the predominating type of headgear, and there are all kinds of them. There are turban toques and toque berets and other combinations, but the material employed for each of them is usually velvet. There is a new rust shade which has proved very popular abroad and seems to be catching public fancy here.

The Evening Wrap Is a Simple Square, Rich in Its Material.

New York—A new evening wrap that is both scarf and cape is being shown with a marked degree of success by one of the New York shops. It is of gold and silver metal cloth cut on circular lines and attached to a deep shoulder yoke of velvet which also forms a full-length Inverness collar. The velvet is in rich evening tones, such as rose or jade green, and the whole wrap is lined with georgette to match.

At another shop, a similar type of scarf is attracting attention, this one being similar to the Rebozo shawl with square corners, so popular last year. Its most arresting feature is a center yoke of velvet, revealing a deep point at the back and giving the effect of a kerchief scarf when worn. From this yoke, diagonal bands of metal cloth are sewed on, these meeting in chevron lines down the back and ending in a point somewhat below the knees.

Another innovation in shawls, much less formal, is the semi-circular shawl of light-weight woolen, edged with knotted woolen fringe and decorated with hand-painting in softly harmonized floral motifs.

The importance of cape effects, and of these comparatively simple metal squares, has been one of the interesting developments of the fall season. At all of the theatre premieres, which attract such smartly-gowned women, the predominance of these squares is noticeable. Frequently the square is of metal brocade, and the frame is plain lame. Metallic tassels are conspicuous as trimming accents.

Light Yield But Better Potatoes

New York State Shows Lower Average Yield Per Acre but Much Better Quality—National Potato Crop Bigger—Beans Good—Cabbage Excellent.

With the potato harvest for the state practically completed, the average yield per acre is estimated to be lower than in 1926 although the quality is much better according to the October report just issued from the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets.

Conditions vary greatly in the different sections of the state. On Long Island where usually a large percentage of the potatoes have been harvested and marketed before the upstate potatoes are ready to harvest, a good production of high quality tubers has been obtained. In the central and southeastern counties where an over-abundance of rainfall was received during the latter part of the growing season considerable blight developed and with it a large amount of rot so that, through these sections, both production and quality were curtailed. Potatoes from other producing areas are already being shipped into these deficient areas. Through the potato growing sections of the northern counties good production of high quality potatoes is reported. For the most part the potato producing sections in the western and southwestern portions of the state have obtained light to medium yields of medium sized but of exceptionally high quality potatoes. For the state as a whole, the production is now estimated at 28,620,000 bushels of better quality potatoes than last year's production of 29,916,000 bushels.

Potato production is fairly light throughout the east. Maine has the lightest crop since 1923. The majority of the potato growing states from Minnesota west show an increase in production this year.

Potato Crops Elsewhere.

Estimates which give the potato production for the United States include those produced all of the way from Texas and Florida to Maine and Washington. As late in the season as this, however, it is the data for the northern states that are significant because practically all of the potatoes produced south of the latitude of the southern boundary of Pennsylvania have already been marketed and consumed. From this date until next spring the supply will come from the north and in fourteen late northern potato states, the production this year is estimated at 261,344,000 bushels compared with 245,496,000 bushels last year or just about 16,000,000 bushels greater than last year. From Wisconsin eastward there are substantially less potatoes than last year, most of the increases being in the states from Minnesota westward.

Bigger and Better Beans.

Bean production in New York state promises 1,282,000 bushels this year compared with 1,145,000 bushels harvested last year. Michigan has 5,364,000 bushels compared with 6,624,000 bushels last season. There is this difference, however. Whereas last year's crop in New York and Michigan was of poor quality and had many culls this year's is of high quality with very few culls or stained beans. For the whole United States a production of 18,112,000 bushels is promised compared with 17,138,000 bushels last year and the five-year average of 16,300,000 bushels.

The Cabbage Crop.

As is usual New York State's production of late or Danish cabbage is greater than the combined production of the remaining cabbage growing states together. Dry weather during September shortened the crop somewhat in the western part of the state but not in the central portion where production is heavier and the heads are larger. Throughout the cabbage sections, the quality is high and the heads are very solid.

Out of a total United States production of about 384,000 tons of Danish cabbage, it is estimated that New York has this year about 243,650 tons. Last year New York produced about 204,300 tons out of a total United States production of 337,300 tons.

The Call of the Theatre

Pertinent Facts Regarding This STATE

IT IS estimated that the entire population of New York State goes to the Theatre once a week, and this entire group is reached by the newspapers of the State every day. Consistent advertising will make consistent audiences.

THE Theatre today is on a higher plane and offers more in high grade entertainment than at any time in history. During a comparatively short time the industry has grown to mammoth proportions with almost unbelievable sums of money invested. With this growth has come a sense of responsibility which has evidenced itself in the formation of large corporations, syndicates and organizations which are solidly built on producing and showing better entertainment.

Probably no one single factor has played as important a part in the rapid expansion of the amusement industry as the daily newspaper which has been the one indispensable connecting link between potential audiences and the producer.

Everyone seeks diversion and entertainment, it is a necessary and instinctive part of our daily life. The new-born child demands entertainment and one of its first instincts is to play. All through our youth, both in school and out, we have acquired a desire and an appreciation of entertainment as portrayed on the stage and screen.

The fire of imagination and the admiration of the virtues of heroes is awakened by comedy, drama and tragedy touching resonant emotions in the life of every one. It is quite natural indeed that the newspaper which daily deals with life itself, real and earnest, should play such an important role in the promotion of an industry with a universal interest and appeal.

The newspapers of New York State, outside of the metropolis, are read by more than three million adults and young people who want to know what attractions there are for today and know those in prospect for their own city or to be seen in larger centers.

An executive of this newspaper or the Advertising Bureau, NEW YORK STATE PUBLISHERS, 709 Charlotte Street, Utica, N. Y., will gladly discuss ways and means of more effective advertising.

Presents Painting To Canajoharie

THE REMBRANDT'S REPLICA OF "NIGHT WATCH" FOR CANAJOHARIE GALLERY

Harris Lieberman, a well-known patron of American artists, recently acquired in New York a copy of the famous painting. The copy was made by [illegible] and is considered a very good one. The picture is now on display at the Canajoharie Art Gallery.

Canajoharie's new possession is the beautiful Mohawk Valley city on the main line of the New York Central Railroad and on the Mohawk Turnpike section of Highway [illegible] road system. It is probable that thousands of motorists will stop at Canajoharie to see the only replica in America of the greatest work extant by Rembrandt, one of the world's master painters.

In fact, you'd think it quite as impossible as the feat pictured in our illustration. What? A Society Brand overcoat of the very smartest sort, made up in an unusually fine fabric, at this price! You wouldn't think it could be done—but by limiting it exclusively to this one style and this one type of fabric, Society Brand has done it. A wonderful cost—by name, The Chief.

Literature and Art of China

Both Described by Dr. Textor in Lecture Before Monday Club—Modern Chinese Writers Seeking to Produce an Accurate History of Their Country.

The Monday Club lecture on "Chinese Literature and Art", given on Monday afternoon by Dr. Lucy E. Textor of Vassar College at the chapel of the First Reformed Church, was one of the most interesting and informing of the series of lectures on China being given by Dr. Textor, up to the present time. Dr. Textor had brought with her a Chinese book, and began her lecture by telling of the great bulk of Chinese literature, which was quite obvious when she said that the Imperial Library index consisted of 150 volumes such as she had in her hand, or larger. The long, narrow covers were of painted wood, the leaves those of the bamboo, very tough and written upon both sides, by hand. The Chinese are very particular about what they write, considering their writings as expressions of their souls. Their tools for writing or brushing are their treasures. Printing with movable type did not come until the Tenth century.

The works by Confucius and the commentaries thereon, Dr. Textor counted as Chinese classics. Chinese philosophy consisted of a consideration of the classics and of the world at large. History was most abundant, especially as the happenings of each Province were recorded day by day and week by week, but unfortunately much of the history was mythical rather than true history. Today there is a group of younger writers who are trying to separate the mythology from the true facts about China, forming a reliable history of the country.

In science the Chinese were considered at their poorest, as the West counts science. Their scientific books were merely interpretations of the signs of nature. Dr. Textor grouped novels and poetry as the polite literature of China. The novels are conversational, dealing with the minute happenings within the home and have not been translated into other languages. Their poetry is wholly different from ours. There is no rhythm. Dr. Textor read some of the poems from 1700 B. C.—an action poem in particular—and then poems of seven or eight hundred years later. While Li-Tai-Po was considered their greatest poet—some of his poems were read—Dr. Textor thought that there were several others his peers.

Taking up the arts, Dr. Textor found little of architecture, except in the temples and pagodas, and not much of the art of sculpture as the West knows that art. There are neither spires nor domes in China, though many of the private temples are exceedingly beautiful. Their bridges—not so very long—are also very artistic and unusual in design. Their triumphal arches, are really memorials and peculiar to China.

Their painting, too, is quite dissimilar to ours. Their perspective is not the American perspective. Painted on the finest of silk or cloth, landscapes are their chief subjects of art, while birds and flowers are among their finest paintings and are absolutely true to life. While the monochromes are their finest paintings, they have used colors very artistically. Their ideal is to depict the inward spirit of the thing they paint. In their own way they are counted great portrait painters.

Dr. Textor closed her lecture by telling about Chinese pottery and their fine carving in jade and ivory. One explanation of the exquisite beauty of their art productions is that to the Chinese time is as nothing and the perfect product is all.

Next Monday Dr. Textor will lecture on "The Chinese Theatre".

California Fruit Sold Through Ads

Report Shows 70,600 Cars of California Citrus Fruit Bring Record Return of $120,000,000—Largest Crop and Greatest f. o. b. Return in History, Says Exchange Annual Report.

Los Angeles, Nov. 15.—In round numbers, $120,000,000 returned to the state for 70,600 carloads of California citrus fruits, largest crop and most money in history, is the information made public today in the annual report for the year ending October 31 of General Manager E. G. Dezell of the California Fruit Growers Exchange. Cooperative marketing as practiced by the 11,000 growers comprising the Exchange made an unprecedented record.

Figures for the previous record year of 1925-26 are exceeded by almost 22 million dollars in returns and 7,000 carloads greater shipments. When freight and refrigeration charges of 41½ million dollars are added, the delivered carload value of this crop reaches the staggering figure of over 161 millions, based on Exchange returns.

"Although the Florida crops suffered severe damage from hurricane and frost, the total supply of oranges and grapefruit in the United States and Canada was approximately 10,000 cars greater than in the preceding season, 17,000 cars more than in 1924-25, and 4,000 cars in excess of the previous largest supply of 1923-24, when Exchange oranges averaged $1 per box less than in 1926-27", says Mr. Dezell.

Sales Due to Advertising.

The increase in the United States orange and grapefruit supply in the last 15 years has been five times as rapid as the gain in population. The satisfactory disposition of this record California orange crop was due largely to their advertising and marketing activities, according to the Exchange general manager.

With lemons, demand has not been as well kept in pace with supply, but progress has been made, per capita consumption steadily increased, and foreign lemons gradually displaced by California lemons. Due to the fact that over 90 per cent of lemon production is handled by Exchange shippers, the organization was in position to cope intelligently with the surplus problem and secure fair results on the maximum quantity the markets could take, states the report.

The Exchange alone marketed 50,468 carloads, 38,891 cars of oranges and grape fruit and 11,577 cars of lemons, or a total of over 22¼ million boxes. Navel shipments reached 16,319 cars, Valencias 20,845 from Exchange houses.

"Returns to Exchange shippers, estimating value of cars yet unsold, reached $85,295,840, with a delivered value to the wholesale trade of $114,843,724," says the Exchange executive. "This is the largest return to California in the history of the industry."

An average of 1 2-3 millions of dollars was returned to its members weekly throughout the year, indicating that the Exchange has well maintained its position of leadership among Pacific Coast industries.

On an aggregate business of $817,000,000 for the past 23 years, the report states that Exchange credit losses have amounted to but 47-10,000 of one per cent.

Development of markets and of new fruit uses and outlets, standardization, advertising and trade promotion, supply, traffic, cultural and insect control departments are important Exchange services enumerated in the report, in addition to the actual marketing function.

Marketing and Advertising Cost.

"Because of the volume of fruit handled," says Mr. Dezell, "total cost of this extended service, which benefits the entire industry, is less than the charges of any competing distributing agency for marketing alone. The total marketing and advertising cost for Exchange growers was 2.40 per cent of the delivered value of the fruit."

Exchange growers have now invested almost nine million dollars in 20 years of consistent advertising, the wisdom of which was tangibly demonstrated in this season of record production, states the general manager. During these 20 years, gross delivered sales were well over a billion dollars and f. o. b. return to Exchange members $788,346,542.

Sunkist advertising cost growers less than one cent per year per consumer, or one-fourth to two-fifths of a cent per dozen of their fruit. Mr. Dezell estimates that for every family in this country, $9.33 was spent for California citrus, a per capita expenditure of $2.15 for the season.

Indicative of its widespread advertising endeavor, the Exchange used 173,911,848 individual advertisements in 19 national magazines, 169,444,426 newspaper ads on oranges and 123,056,460 on lemons. Literally millions of recipe bulletins and booklets were distributed.

Increased service work with dealers resulted in 65,837 personal calls in addition to direct mail work with the jobbers and retailers who help distribute the fruit.

Results of Using Trademark.

Effectiveness of all advertising was increased by over 2½ billion oranges stamped with the famous Sunkist trademark, definitely identifying the product to consumers.

Europe took 500,000 boxes of Sunkist oranges and grapefruit, shipped from Los Angeles harbor via the Panama Canal. Direct shipments to Hawaii, the Philippines and the Orient amounted to 200,000 boxes. These were tremendous gains and the outlets helpful in disposing of their largest crop, says the report.

Based upon a conservative consumption of 50 boxes per year each, 41,614 Sunkist extractors were responsible for consumption of over two million boxes, or 5,000 cars, visualized by Mr. Dezell as 486,467,660 drinks, which at 10 cents retail means a $48,646,766 fresh fruit drinks business.

OFFICE CAT

By Junius

After all a stable government only requires horse sense.

No, my son, it isn't at all necessary for you to attend the State Agricultural College in order to learn how to sow your wild oats.

Nearsighted Old Gentleman: "Are you a messenger boy?"

Urchin (indignantly): "No, sir, it's my sore toe that makes me walk this slow."

More Queer Things.

A cattail is a thing that grows
In places that are flat;
But almost everybody knows
It hasn't any cat.
—Youngstown, Ohio, Telegram.

The horsefly is a wise old thing,
And gets there, yes, of course,
And yet the horsefly does not have
A solitary horse.

A rich man died, leaving his total fortune to three friends—an Englishman, an Irishman and a Jew—on condition that each deposit 50 pounds in his coffin. At the funeral the Englishman placed 50 pounds in cash inside the casket, the Irishman puts his 50 pounds in notes, while the Jew deposited his check for 150 pounds, taking out the 100 pounds cash for his change. The check was cashed the next day. The undertaker was a Scotchman.

"Br-r-r! It's chilly in here. Has the stove gone out?"

"Yes, it has."

"Well, why don't you light it?"

"I can't. It went out with the installment collector."

If You Want to Get Slapped.

Try this one on your girl: Get her to say "Stewed prunes" with her eyes closed. It's easy.

Charles Lindbergh, a farm boy, received the most tremendous reception ever accorded any man when he returned to New York from Paris. Yet they say farmers can't gain recognition.

"Be observant, my son," counseled Willie's father. "Cultivate the habit of seeing and you will become a successful man."

"Yes," added Willie's uncle, "Don't go through life like a blind man. Learn to use your eyes."

"Little boys who are observing get on much faster than those who are not." Aunt Jane put in.

The youngster took their advice to heart. A day passed and once more he stood before the family council.

"Well, my son," said his father, "have you been using your eyes?" Willie nodded. "Tell us what you learned."

"Uncle Jim's got a bottle of whiskey hid behind his trunk," said Willie. "Aunt Jane's got an extra set of false teeth in her dresser and pa's got a deck of cards and a box of chips hid behind Emerson's Essays in the bookcase."

"The little sneak!" exclaimed the family with one voice.

Squeaky shoes always sound loudest in church.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Washington.—The tall handsome king and the pulchritudenous petite queen of aviation make a handsome picture together. When they posed Ruth was the envy of girls who gathered outside the White House and called to her "Lindy, Lindy, we want to see you". "You are a very plucky girl", said the king to the queen. "He's a peach", said the queen of the air.

New York.—Oh, for the days of "two years before the mast!" Miss Alice Longfellow of Cambridge, Mass., daughter of the poet, is back from Europe a bit saddened by the luxury of latter day ocean travel. Her first voyage was 60 years ago when Richard Henry Dana of Cambridge was famous for his book. "You really went to see then", she says.

South Hadley, Mass.—Well, Florence Tremouth has been graduated and Mount Holyoke College is much poorer. Another then Hartford, or Plainville, Conn., and a dance is a dance. Miss Sarah Kunsig, of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., tall blonde sophomore, had at the first formal college affair of the season no less a beau than John Coolidge.

New York.—Miss Jean Schoen, 30, back from 14 months globe-trotting which cost her $7,000, is now going to work as a stenographer to save up more. Then she will resume trips to out of the way places. Of those visited so far she prefers Bali, Dutch East Indies. A. Y. Gowen of Cleveland once went to Bali in his yacht. He thought the women there were the most beautiful in the world.

Princeton, N. J.—Earl S. Baruch, who has been telling ten other followers for two months just what to do for Princeton, is to have a boss himself. The quarterback is engaged to Miss Phyllis H. Fox of Merion, Pa.

New York — Allegations about noisy parties in the apartment of Barclay Warburton, whose divorced wife is now Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, are on file in court. Sued for rent after vacating another apartment in the same building, Ludwig Carmer averred: "Barclay Warburton almost nightly would have parties composed of men and women at all hours of the night. The guests would indulge in loud and boisterous behavior, making it impossible for the defendant to have his proper rest".

Charlottetown, P. E. I.—Norway gets its foxes from Prince Edward Island. One consignment of 1,000 animals is to be shipped shortly. The prices range from $500 to $1,500 a pair.

New York—To reduce weight or keep it down, get a job as a football official. Walter Eckersall, here helping to run the Army-Notre Dame game, told a friend: "You'll be surprised, but my weight is exactly the same as when I played football, and that's 144 pounds stripped".

New York—Sir Harry Lauder, who has been in retirement in Scotland since the death of his wife last summer, will return to the stage in the winter. He has written William Morris: "Winter is here again and all is dull and I am alone. What a life! I must get back to the people".

LEGION DRUM CORPS NUMBERS FIFTY MEN

The American Legion Drum Corps met Monday night under the able leadership of Major Pierce, Richard Obenaus and Howard Smith. Several new buglers and snare drummers joined the corps and there are openings for more buglers and snare drummers.

Major Pierce, 84 year-old Civil War drummer, who criticized the drummers severely several weeks ago when he instructed them, said the snare men had improved greatly but he was not over enthusiastic about their ability. The perfect "roll" was still missing and he recommended that the drummers purchase rubber mats to practice at home. Mr. Obenaus also insisted upon the mats.

Howard Smith, young pupil of the major's, was on hand and gave detailed instructions to the men. The drum corps has been enlarged and about fifty men were present.

Francis Elston, Walter De Graff and Gene O'Connell signed as buglers Monday night. Percy Jones, Alden Hunt and Robert Hudler are new drummers who joined at the meeting.

The corps accepted the offer of the armory for practice Friday nights and the practice, starting November 25, will be held there.

Prof. Clarence Dumm, assistant principal of the high school, has agreed to take charge of the new buglers for the corps and whip them into shape. All instructors said they believed the drum corps had brilliant prospects for success. Legionnaires wishing to join the corps should make application to Drum Major Burton Castle.

"I represent the dignity of labor," said the mechanic. "Yes," replied the man of wealth and responsibility, "you can work in your shirt sleeves, speak your mind and quit work when your hours are through. Opening of Hockey League

New York, Nov. 15 (AP).—Winter will arrive officially in the New York sporting world and four other cities of the National Hockey League tonight with the opening of the professional circuit for the season of 1928.

Both the International and American division of the circuit will swing into action that will carry through into March, when the winners of first and second places in the two sections battle for the Stanley cup, emblem of the world professional hockey championship. Ten teams make up the circuit that invaded New York for the first time three years ago.

In games tonight, the New York Americans will entertain the Montreal Canadians at Madison Square Garden while the New York Rangers meet Toronto Maple Leafs at Toronto. The remainder of the schedule consists of Montreal Maroons and the champion Ottawa Senators, at Ottawa; Chicago Black Hawks and Boston Bruins, at Boston, and Detroit Cougars and Pittsburgh Pirates at Pittsburgh.

Fast Players on Albany Quintet

Kingston's Metropolitan League representatives will take the court against Albany for their second home contest Wednesday night. The game will start at 9 o'clock. It is expected that a large gathering of fans will attend to see the capital district quintet in action here for the first time in four years.

The interest in basketball has been lacking for some years in Albany but this year was revived and a representative team entered in the Metropolitan League. The fans seem to have increased their enthusiasm in the sport and it is said approximately 1,400 saw the battle between Kingston and Albany last Thursday.

Harry Riconda will be with the Albany team here Wednesday. He is quite a favorite in this city owing to his ability to shoot the leather through the hoops consistently. "Swede" Grimsted will also be with the Albanians. He, too, played in a Kingston uniform for a time last season. The rest of Albany's line-up will consist of Collins, Bergkamp, Conway and McKinstry.

Kingston will probably take the floor with Knothe, f; Sirosky, f; Frank, c; Yeskes and Husta, guards.

Athletics at Penn Are Brisk

ATHLETICS at the University of Pennsylvania are in full swing on field and river. Football, king of fall sports, naturally occupies the center of the stage, but soccer, cross country, track and crew are receiving a great deal of the student interest.

Russell S. Callow, former Washington crew coach, started rowing practice last week with a turnout of candidates that completely overwhelmed him. Over two hundred freshmen, 90 per cent of whom never had reported early in the same number of upperclassmen on hand the latter part of the week.

Rusty Callow.

An intensive training program on the Schuylkill will keep the oarsmen busy six days a week until the weather becomes too cold. From mid-November until after Christmas holidays, the oarsmen will be given a respite, after which they will start on the indoor machines.

While Callow does not have a wealth of veteran material to work with, he expects to select from the fifty candidates who will receive his particular attention. The tall, rangy type of oarsmen he was used to on the coast are not sufficiently numerous at Pennsylvania to meet his demands.

Callow is undaunted at the lack of size of the candidates and firmly believes that he can develop a crew that will make a better showing than recent Pennsylvania eights. Captain Gentsch of Ogden, Utah; John Sebastian, Jerome Cheney and Bill Doniger are the veterans from the varsity eight that rowed at Poughkeepsie.

Unprofitable Living

After hypocrites, the greatest dupes the devil has are those worldly minded men who exhaust an anxious existence in the disappointments and vexations of business and live miserably and meanly, only to die magnificently and rich.—John Taylor.

Ten Home Runs Once Was Enough to Lead Field

Twenty years ago Mike Donlin was to another generation of New York fans what Babe Ruth is today. Donlin, of course, was not the hitter that Babe is. Home runs were outstanding feats when "Turkey Mike" was the outfield star and leading thumper of McGraw's first champions, his team of 1904 and 1905. In 1904 Lumley of the Dodgers led in hitting National league home runs with nine, and in 1905 Odwell of the Reds led with the same number. In those same two years Harry Davis of the Athletics led the American league with ten and eight respectively.

Donlin never led the National league in home runs, but in that era of pitching duels a man with six, seven or eight homers a year stood out. There were less home runs but those that were hit were talked about a great deal more.

With one-eighth the annual output of Ruth, Mike enjoyed the reputation of being New York's leading home-run monarch of his day.

Kinney Direct to Star on Circuit Next Season

The best pacer in sight for the Grand Circuit stakes next year—that's what "Barney" Barnes, veteran driver, thinks of Kinney Direct.

This pacer, by Merry Direct out of Del Kinney, is a six-year-old that ran his first race at Winnipeg last winter. He had been bought from a Calgary owner for $400, but when he began winning races so easily and in such good time he was sold to James B. Reynolds, millionaire turfman of St. Louis, for $10,000.

Reynolds, told that Kinney Direct had paced the mile distance in less than two minutes, said he'd give $10,000 for the pacer if he could do it again.

So the next day Al McGirr, Winnipeg owner, paced Kinney Direct a mile in 1:59 2-5, and the deal was made.

Change for Better Seen at Harvard in Football

Close followers of eastern football are remarking that the presence of Bill Bingham, rather than better football material, may be one of the prime factors in replacing Harvard on the football map. Those who have visited the Cambridge campus and environs are outspoken in their praise for the good fellowship and hospitality Bingham is spreading—after the "holier than thou" atmosphere which has prevailed in connection with the various activities for years. Arnold Horween, coach, is a democratic type as well. Both men seem to realize the value of popularity in connection with the promotion of athletics under modern conditions.

How Tunney and Tex Rickard Stand

Champion Says Promoter Can No Longer Dictate To Him—Plans To Visit Detroit and Cleveland.

New York, Nov. 15 (AP).—The smiling sophisticated Gene Tunney who left two weeks ago for an outing at Racquette Lake, N. Y., was back in town today "fighting mad" and ready to declare war on Tex Rickard. The reason was "Tex Rickard's business activities with Jack Dempsey" and its result was a new type of Tunney whose eyes flashed angrily as he talked with jaw tilted pugnaciously.

"I have no definite statement to make at this time," Gene said grimly, "pending the result of investigations I am making in regard to Rickard's business activities with Dempsey. But you can bet everything you own that things in the heavyweight championship fight situation in 1928 will not turn out the way Mr. Rickard hopes and thinks they will."

Tunney declared that although he wishes to fight three times in 1928, he will not see the promoter for some time, and then only to arrange for the single battle Rickard's contract calls for in the coming year.

"If I only fight once it will be because I get licked in the first bout and retire," he said. "After all, I am heavyweight champion of the world and the champion should have something to say about where and when and whom he fights.

"I have lost money and put myself in embarrassing and critical positions before by being too trustful and believing everyone to be fair and absolutely honest. From now on I am looking out for the best interests of three persons only—and they are Gene Tunney, Billy Gibson and Bill McCabe.

"Rickard claims to have an iron bound contract with me that allows him to dictate to me about whatever I do in my boxing career. But my contract, drawn by capable lawyers, protects me and gives me the legal right as well as the right of the champion to say something about what I shall do in my profession. Rickard can dictate to Dempsey and a lot of other heavyweights, but he can no longer dictate to me."

The titleholder said he plans to visit Detroit and Cleveland after several weeks here. About the middle of December he will leave for Florida for an extended stay.

ST. PETER'S TO PLAY EAST KINGSTON TEAM.

St. Peter's basketball team will oppose the East Kingston Big Five next Sunday night at the East Kingston court. The brick-making district will be represented by L. Tiano, Mooney, Kelly, Parise, M. Tiano, Fay and Tierney. Pete Bruck, Joe Bruck, Andy Murphy, Joe Koenig, Tommy Daritt, Roy Van Buren and Joey Hoffman will wear St. Peter's togs. The game is scheduled to start at 8:15. On Thursday night the St. Peter's quintet will practice at East Kingston at 8 o'clock.

Harvard Regulars Physically Fit

Yale May Take The Field Without The Services of Three Stars—Crossed Harvard Goal Line But Once In 19 Years.

New York, Nov. 15 (AP).—A tradition that hangs over the "last whistle" in the Harvard Stadium—a goal that Yale has crossed but once in 19 years seeped into the minds of eastern grid historians today as the elevens of the Crimson and Blue settled down to work for their 46th meeting at Cambridge Saturday.

Riding on the crest of a victory wave that has swept over Army, Dartmouth and Princeton, Yale will bring to the huge Crimson stadium a team that is headed straight for eastern supremacy. Harvard can place on the field only eleven warriors who have suffered three defeats this season. But other great Eli elevens have come to the banks of the Charles as favored as this one and have returned to New Haven leaving only further evidence of the "black magic" superstition hovering about the home goal line.

In nineteen years, Yale has scored but one touchdown over Harvard in the stadium. That score came in 1923, when Ducky Pond paddled his way past the Crimson ranks on a field almost lost in driving rain and ankle deep in mud. In 1925, the year Eli last visited them at Cambridge, the team of Johnny Joss, almost as general a favorite as Yale is today, ran into a stonewall defense that gained a "moral victory" in a scoreless tie, in that game, an impenetrable defense against forward passes kept Yale away from the Harvard goal. Today, the Crimson started to perfect a similar defense, if possible, for the heroic tosses Johnny Hoben threw to conquer Princeton in the final eight minutes of play last Saturday.

Harvard has an advantage in that every regular will be physically fit to battle for a victory that means seasonal success for the Crimson despite previous defeats. Yale may take the field without the services of that same Hoben, who has an injured elbow, Captain Webster, with leg hurt, and John Garvey, line-splitting ace, whose shoulders are bruised.

Only a single intersectional clash between Carnegie Tech and Detroit, the time-honored battle of Lehigh and Lafayette, and the Catholic championship quarrel of Fordham and Georgetown will vie for major combat standing with the ancient duel of Harvard and Yale. Army and Navy will tune up for their service struggle on the following Saturday, against the teams of Ursinus and Loyola of Baltimore. Tuning up engagements for other major elevens facing seasonal climaxes on Thanksgiving Day bring together Syracuse and Niagara and Brown and New Hampshire, while other teams will spend the day in total ease. Holy Cross meets Boston University and Rutgers plays Swarthmore, while the Violets of New York University tackle a fairly strong assignment in Allegheny.

JUDAEANS WILL PLAY CONGREGATIONALS TONIGHT.

Tonight at the Jewish Center the Judaeans will play for the first time this season. The Congregationals, opponents for tonight, have a strong team and should give the Hebrew boys a good tussle. The Judaeans have practiced until the opening of the basketball season and are prepared to start tonight. Coach Reuben will pick from Aleon, Periman, Bahl, Balinky, Frier, Sussin, Basch and Goldfarb, but it is not known just who will start.

A fast preliminary game will precede the regular game. The forerunner will be between the Judaean Juniors and the Spevack five from the upper part of the city.

On Wednesday evening, November 23, the Young Judaeans will play the Dans of Schenectady. This team is one of the leading teams in that city. Tickets for this game may be obtained from all members of the team.

Fighter's Jaw Broken.

New York, Nov. 15 (AP).—Johnny Indressano, 21, Boston, suffered a fracture of the right jaw last night when he was knocked down in the first round of his battle with Clyde Hull of Dallas, Texas, at Madison Square Garden. Indressano's jaw was broken when it hit the canvas.

Service Eleven Are Champions

Soldier Outfit Takes Prize at West Point and Will Display Strength Against Yellow Jackets Sunday.

The Yellow Jackets will have to prepare in great measure for their game Sunday with a championship eleven, the West Point Service Detachment. The large number of fans expected to attend the game will undoubtedly see one of the best games ever staged in this vicinity. The soldiers are out to overcome the defeat the Yellow Jacks handed them last year and show that they can be champions here as well as in the West Point district. The Yellow Jackets intend to hold off all comers in defense of the wonderful record they now possess—not a single loss since their organization.

The Artillery eleven whom the Yellow Jackets subdued, 6-0, here several weeks ago dropped their title as champions of the Point area to the Service Detachment team, 12-6 last Sunday. Captain Joe McGrath, halfback of the Service team, registered his usual spectacular plays in the game with the Artillery. He ran eighty-five yards for a touchdown after intercepting a forward pass. His run was made through a barrage of tacklers.

There is plenty of material for the Service Detachment team to choose from. They will no doubt bring the best they can procure to Kingston. It is their one big ambition of the season, now that they are champions of West Point Service League, to overthrow the Yellow Jackets. Several veterans of the gridiron who played here last season with the soldiers will not make the trip this year for younger men with plenty of ability will hold down their places. The tentative lineup of the Service team is Zarek and Kogut, ends; Perry and Jehebor tackles; Murray and Costello guards, Alvord center; Sammon quarterback; Coffey and McGrath half backs and Dillon fullback.

Just who the Yellow Jackets will send to the field has not been made known yet but it is planned that every player will be in trim ready for the "hottest contest" of the season. Practice will be held tonight at 6 o'clock.

ONE OF HIGH-LIGHTS OF ARMY'S WIN OVER INDIANANS

Interesting bit of action snapped by the camera during Army's thorough defeat of Notre Dame at New York shows Riley (No. 20), of the Rockne aggregation throwing one of the forward passes that have made the "Fighting Irish" famous.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

WHEN YOUR HAND GOES TO YOUR HEART

Difficulty in breathing and heart palpitation are symptoms of high blood pressure, which may cut off life suddenly. Our modern habits of life are responsible, putting too great a strain upon the vital organs, especially the liver. When the liver becomes "limp" or sluggish it fails to cleanse the blood of the toxic poisons formed in food waste. The poisons then permeate the system, affecting stomach, kidneys, heart and blood pressure. The liver occasionally needs a little help, and there's nothing better for this, as medical men today know, than a little ox gall. Ox gall is a great natural stimulant for the human liver, promoting its normal active functioning, so essential to real health. Dioxol tablets are genuine ox gall in dainty and tasteless form, each tablet representing 10 drops of pure ox gall. A few bring impressive results. To be sure of getting the genuine ox gall, be sure of getting Dioxol. They cost less than 2c each at druggists.

"Strongheart" Friday Night

The Kingston High School Athletic Association's presentation of "Strongheart" will be given in the K. H. S. Auditorium Friday November 18, at 8:15.

"Strongheart," although not a new play, is modern in every detail, and the acts of the play could very easily happen in any American college.

The play is laid mostly in a college of the east, known as Darby. The main interest of the play is caused by a fellow who is badly in need of funds, betraying his team and sending his team's signals to the opposing team.

Miss Byrne, the director, has the cast up to standard and the patrons are assured of a fine show.

Several Kingstonians remember seeing the play under a different name, about 16 years ago, and all say that the play was excellent in every detail.

Through the courtesy of the McBride Drug Stores, tickets for the play will be on sale at the McBride Wall street store.

Tickets can be exchanged at the local Y. M. C. A. Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, November 16, 17, 18. All seats are reserved.

PLEASING SONG RECITAL AT ST. JOHN'S PARISH HOUSE

The song recital given by Adah Mae Curran, mezzo-soprano of Newburgh, at St. John's Parish House Monday evening was a very enjoyable affair. Mrs. Curran has a very pleasing voice of wide range and pure tonal effect and her enunciation is gratifyingly clean-cut. She sang first a group of Italian songs that were very well received. They were:

a. Caro mio ben ..... Giordano
b. Tu lo sai ..... Torelli
c. Scherzo ..... Respighi
d. Aria di Poppea—(Agrippina, Act III) ..... Handel-Bibb

The German songs:

a. Bettler Liebe ... August Bungert
b. Mondnacht ... Robert Schumann
c. Sandmannchen ..... Johannes Brahms
d. Blinde Kuh .. Johannes Brahms were sung with considerable feeling and excellent tonal effect.

PART II.

a. On wings of song ..... Felix Mendelssohn
b. Sylvelin ..... Christian Sinding
c. Slumber Song .. A. Gretchaninov
d. Nymphs and Shepherds ..... Henry Purcell
a. The Sea .... Edward MacDowell
b. A maid sings light ..... Edward MacDowell
c. A pocket handkerchief ..... Sidney Homer
d. Lie abed, sleepy head ..... Sidney Homer
e. Life ..... Pearl Curran

Undoubtedly the audience enjoyed the second half of the program the most and enthusiastically recalled Mrs. Curran at the close of the program, to which applause she graciously responded with two charming encores.

Mrs. Curran was given excellent support by her accompanist, Margaret Sharp Sears, at the piano.

LAST NIGHT on the RADIO

Reception early Monday evening was of a quality not excelled in two or more years. The only defect was a return of the blare in mild and modified form. Stations in Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, Cincinnati and Louisville were tuned in before 6 o'clock. Later in the evening there was some crackling noise, probably genuine static, and the buzz continued, but volume was very strong.

WJZ and WEAF showed a marked tendency to fade at times and a little experimenting showed a condition worthy of note by the various kinds of experts who love to theorize and explain. Whenever WJZ faded WEAF was strong, and vice versa. By tuning in one station that was strong, holding it until it faded and then tuning in the other station it was found that invariably the two stations were alternating in periods of strength and weakness. No explanation or theory is offered, but the facts were as stated.

The second of the matinee series by the Rochester Philharmonic Orchestra to be broadcast Thursday afternoon, November 17, will feature the first American performance of the tone picture "Andalusia", based on the Andalusian folk tunes by the composer de Grignon, whose works are new to American music lovers.

O. E. S. Card Party.

A card party for the benefit of the Sunshine fund, under the auspices of Clinton Chapter, No. 445, Order of the Eastern Star, will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, in Masonic Hall, Wall street. Bridge and pinochle will be played, prizes will be awarded and refreshments served. The public is cordially invited.

Earliest City Subways

The first Boston subway was begun in 1894. It was an underground tunnel for the surface electric lines entering the business district of the city of Boston. The original New York subway, as contracted for in 1900, comprised some 20½ miles of line, three-quarters of which is in tunnel.

GOOD THINGS TO EAT

A GOOD cake is never out of place in the week's menu. Where the family is small it is wise to make cakes which will not dry quickly or do as one neighborhood does—bake a cake and divide it with another. Half of a cake is enjoyed to the last crumb.

Almond Chocolate Potato Cake.

Cream one cupful of butter and beat in one cupful of sugar and one cupful of sweet grated chocolate. Add the beaten yolks of four eggs, one cupful of fine almonds, two cupfuls of riced potatoes, two cupfuls of flour sifted with one-half teaspoonful of salt, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one teaspoonful of cinnamon and one-half teaspoonful of cloves. Add the flour gradually and alternate with milk to make a thick batter, about three-fourths of a cupful. Fold in the stiffly-beaten whites of the eggs and bake in a well-greased tube pan.

Raisin and Green Pepper Salad.

Simmer one-half cupful of raisins in one-fourth cupful or more of orange juice until soft, add a teaspoonful of lemon juice. Arrange a bed of lettuce, cover with shredded green pepper and the raisins and pour over a thousand island dressing prepared as follows: Beat very slowly into a half cupful of mayonnaise one teaspoonful of vinegar, salt and paprika to season, one chopped red pepper, one green pepper chopped and a half dozen olives, also chopped. Mix well and season with scraped onion and serve with the above salad.

Favorite Apple Salad.

Core six red apples and cook them carefully in boiling water until tender but unbroken. Carefully remove the skins, scrape the red from them and paint the cheeks of the apples. Chill and arrange on lettuce. Fill the center with chopped nuts and celery and serve with a rich mayonnaise. Garnish the filled apple with a sprig of bleached celery and a nut or two.

Salmon and Pea Salad.

Take a can of salmon, removing all skin and bones, add an equal amount of cooked peas, season well and serve with highly seasoned boiled dressing to which a chopped sour pickle has been added. Serve on head lettuce with plenty of dressing for garnish.

WHEN I WAS TWENTY-ONE
BY JOSEPH KAYE

At 21 Louis Joseph Vance Was Driven to Write for Pay.

WHEN I was twenty-one I had been a husband three years, and a father one year. The weekly stipend of $18 on which I braved the adventure of marriage didn't go far toward the providing for the needs of three souls. I was heavily oppressed by debt; I must have owed at least $100, or more, and something had to be done about it. So I wrote a story—because I had heard that as much as a cent a word was sometimes paid for stories, and couldn't think of any other way to raise the wind. I had always been scribbling, more or less aimlessly.

The story was called "The Death of the Dawn." I submitted it to my father for an opinion. He was a veteran of the Civil war and an old newspaper man; and it so happened that my manuscript got into his hands at a time when he was entertaining another veteran of that conflict, though one that had fought on the southern side, Col. Prentiss Ingraham—author of something like over two thousand novels, of which "Montezuma the Merciless" attained a sale of more than two million copies.

Now my story was a Civil war story and for that reason, I presume, those two old soldiers liked it and praised it and assured me that any editor in his right senses would jump at the chance to publish it.

It must have been that all the editors who saw it were imbeciles—or something was wrong. Many years later I sold that story to Anna Steese Richardson for the McClure short story service. It fetched $25 for copyright and all rights."—Louis Joseph Vance.

TODAY: Louis Joseph Vance is a famous novelist and can look back on those early experiences with the proverbial and alleged twinkle in his eye. At one time "The Death of the Dawn," which contained five thousand words, was accepted by an editor at five cents a word, but before the astounded author had made the necessary changes the magazine suspended publication.

FOR THE GOOSE—

WHEN the neighbors is cookin' cabbage, you can't rejoice. But you can shut the window.

Envy is its own reward.

Your mouth'll tell what you are, even if you keep it closed.

It's a good dope to know a foreign language. But not to talk it in your neighbor's house.

FOR THE GANDER—

Anger is a good gun, but temper is the kind that don't touch the feller it's aimed at, but half-kills the guy that's holdin' it.

Women adore presence of mind.

In fact, they like any kind of presents.

Late Husbands Better Way to Mexican Homes

Mexico City.—Apartment house dwellers from large American cities, accustomed to the locks of subways and evening trains, tickets and ... find a new test for their nerves when they hear the average Mexican gaining entrance to his house at night.

In Mexico one does not unlock the front door with a latch key and slip upstairs quietly, shoes in hand. Properly speaking, there is no front door to the house itself, but a ponderous heavy wooden gate, heavily paneled, leading into the court or patio from outside the street. To gain admittance it is necessary usually to ring the electric bell and hammer a heavy knocker against the door for several minutes.

The object of the commotion is to wake a servant who sleeps in the semi-basement near the gate. By the time this person is awake, however, only the very soundest sleepers among the other occupants of the house are unaware that some one is trying to enter.

He Would Put Booths for Wooers in Churches

Denver, Colo.—Dr. Ira Landrith of Chicago, citizenship superintendent of the World's Christian Endeavor union, speaking at a rally of Denver Christian Endeavor societies, advocated courting booths in churches as a means of attracting young people to church.

"Why not?" he asked. "People get married in the church, so why couldn't they do their courting there?"

"It's a whole lot better that a young man should court his sweetheart in the church than in a dance hall or public park, where bootleggers and other evil influences are thicker than mosquitoes in Alaska. And the nice part about it is that in case the young couple suddenly decide to get married the preacher is generally handy."

Briton Says Device Will Eliminate Ice

London.—Cold storage and refrigeration are likely to become obsolete if claims put forward in connection with an invention for preserving fruit, eggs, butter and other foods are justified.

The method, known as "Stabback's process," is more a protection than a preservation. It consists of a harmless solution which is said to enable a housewife to keep 300 or 400 eggs for an indefinite period.

The English National Utility Poultry society treated dozens of eggs by coating them with the solution and stored them in an ordinary place. At the end of several months they were absolutely fresh.

On two occasions consignments of apples after treatment were sent as deck cargo to Tasmania and they arrived fresh.

It is claimed that the process will reduce the cost of imported fruit, as the freightage will be halved, and it is hoped that many tropical fruits will be introduced into England which have never before been imported.

C. D. of A. Show Scores Big Hit

A large and appreciative audience witnessed the Catholic Daughters of America Minstrel and Revue Monday night at St. Mary's Hall. Applause echoed through the large hall where the performance was given amid a stage setting most attractive. Dancing was enjoyed after the show with music furnished by the Colonial Serenaders. The last presentation of the Minstrel and Revue will be given tonight.

Director David L. Long received commendation in large measure for the success he turned out. Mary O'Marra, Mary Van Buren, Agnes McNelis and Rita Ketterer as black-faced waiters in the roof garden scene kept the audience in laughter with their comedy song hits and jokes. Mrs. Katherine Liscom as hostess proved popular in the role and pleased with a solo. Ballad numbers were rendered in admirable fashion by the Misses Catherine Hogan, Marie Ulrich, Gertrude Kraus, Marie Ketterer and Mary Moran, assisted by Cecilia Piliswort. A quartet composed of Mary Moran, Kathryn Carroll, Alice Callaghan and Caroline Nave sang "Honolulu Moon" with pretty harmony and rhythm.

Scene two, which depicted a number of darkies picking cotton in front of a little cabin, proved popular with the audience.

A skit entitled "Stage Struck" was presented by Florence Rhinehart as Mamie and Marie Ketterer as Adelaide, a stage celebrity.

The stage settings for the presentations were appropriate and changes were made in record time by Robert Rhinehart and Ray Mitchell.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Nov. 15 (AP).—Favorable trade news from some of the basic industries provided the ground work for another advance in prices in today's stock market. Continued ease of money rates in the face of an unusually heavy mid-month turnover of funds, due to the retirement of the second liberty bonds, was another favorable factor.

Profit taking in some of the leading industrials gave the morning market an irregular appearance, but offerings were well absorbed. U. S. steel common converted an early loss of 1⅛ points into a gain of 1 point before the end of the third hour, and General Motors climbed a point above yesterday's final quotation. Wall Street showed only a passing interest in the publication of alleged photographs of the new Ford car, but reports that William Durant was undertaking a merger of several independent motor companies including Hupp, Chandler, Jordan, Moon and Peerless, while lacking official confirmation, nevertheless stimulated speculative activity in those issues. One block of 20,000 shares of Hupp changed hands at 25.

Steel shares displayed a strong undertone on reports from steel centers that the recent increase in commodity prices had stimulated the demand, Gulf States advancing 4 points. Sugar shares were quick to respond to the announcement of an international plan to curtail production, American Sugar Refining leading that group with an early advance of 4 points. Restricted production in the oil industry was a bullish influence on that group.

Omission of the Remington Rand quarterly dividend already had been discounted by that stock. Case Threshing broke six points and International Harvester dropped almost as much on realizing.

Investment rails were quiet, although Northern Pacific and Atchison preferred reached new high ground.

Asks Deputy for Ride, Is Captured

Lowville, N. Y., Nov. 15 (AP).—Francis Sutton, of Albany, who escaped Saturday night from the prison camp near here, was taken into custody this morning by Deputy Sheriff Lewis Kohler. Sutton, who earlier in the day had been the unwelcome but genial guest of local residents, hailed a motorist and asked a ride to Boonville, only to find that he had stopped Deputy Sheriff Kohler. The latter recognized the convict whom he had been seeking, disarmed him and brought him to the county jail.

Mr. and Mrs. Miles Sullivan were awakened early this morning when a man armed with a rifle walked into their bedroom. He told them who he was, an escaped convict, and said he wanted food and clothing. Furnished with these he regaled the couple with accounts of his experiences and his escape.

As he was about to depart, Sutton's rifle fell and was discharged. The convict delayed his leave taking long enough to render first aid to Mrs. Sullivan, who had fainted when the gun went off. Troopers hastened in pursuit when notified of his visit.

Sutton was sentenced to seven years in Great Meadows prison from Albany and had served five and one half years.

DEAD CITIES of CARTHAGE

Ruins of the Temple of Tanit.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

FEW sites of antiquity have a more illustrious history than the peninsula on which lie the accumulated ruins of the dead cities of Carthage. Phoenicians, Berbers, Numidians, Romans, Vandals, Byzantine crusaders, and, lastly, the Arabs have all left their traces, and today in the strata of thirty centuries lie the mute evidences of long racial warfare and the dethronement of past splendors.

Here, where peace now reigns over the marble dust, is a natural beauty and grandeur equal to any of the famous scenes along the Mediterranean shore, and the panorama viewed from Cape Carthage explains Queen Dido's selection of the site, in the Ninth century B. C., for the first Punic city of Carthage.

From the summit of the ancient hill called Byrsa (meaning "hide," and reminiscent of the Dido story of the bull skin), is unfolded the landscape which was once the scene of the great tragedy of the Mediterranean. To the east lies the magnificent Gulf of Tunis, of azure blue shading off into emerald green near the shores.

On the opposite bank arise the majestic twin summits of the sacred mountain of the Carthaginians, the Bou-Kornein. There stood the temple dedicated to Baal, but only a few stones mark the spot where the flames of votive offerings once paid homage to the insatiable Phoenician gods.

To the south, in an amphitheater surrounded by purple mountains, its hundred minarets reflected in the Tunis lagoon, lies "the White Mantle of the Prophet," as the Arabs call the city of Tunis today.

The picturesque village of Sidi-bou-Said crowns the northern promontory of Cape Carthage. It looks somewhat like a white dove, the sacred symbol of the Carthaginians, for its roofs and domes spread out like wings above the blood-red precipices that stand like sentinels above the entrance to the Gulf of Tunis.

This is the scene so often gazed upon by Dido, Pyrrhus, Hasdrubal, Haniclar, Hannibal, Scipio, Caesar, Cyprian, Augustine, Genseric, and St. Louis, and its history is made still more eloquent by the resurrection of its buried ruins.

Under Earth and Water.

The excavation of Carthage is difficult because of the great topographical changes that have taken place since Punic days. For these changes the Medjerda river is responsible to a considerable degree, as its alluvial deposits have encroached upon a large part of the peninsula, completely covering a portion of land which in all probability was once occupied by the city. Today the Arabs still call these marshes Bahar el Azrag, meaning "the Blue Sea."

From motion picture films taken by airplane it is quite evident that there are vast submarine walls at Cape Kamart, to the northwest of the peninsula. Excavations at this point, it is believed, will throw some light on the old baffling mystery as to the site of the Punic ports, where the mighty merchant fleets of the Canaanites plied to and fro. (As may be remembered, the Phoenician, whose Roman name was "Punicus," was a native of Canaan, in the lowlands of Palestine, prior to the invasion of the Jews.)

According to the descriptions of Appian and other Roman historians, we know the ports to have been circular at one time, with the admiral's military palace in the center, and at another period quadrilateral. It is said that as many as 220 galleys could be anchored at one time in the harbor. Actually a series of harbors, they were of imposing architecture and were marked off by gigantic columns, between which the ships were moored.

Carthage a Great City.

The sea has risen three and one-half yards since Roman days, and there are many ruins under water in the gulf and at La Marsa, north of the rebuilt city.

The question of when the Egyptians may have occupied this territory can be solved only by the most laborious and prolonged research, since Cambe, the city of the Sidonians, was founded by them six centuries before Dido (really Elissar, daughter of King Mathan of Tyre) settled there with her fugitive Phoenicians, prior to 800 B. C. Cambe was merely a ruin at this time, and history affords nothing beyond the fact of its existence and origin. Sidon had been the principal Phoenician seaport; so the Carthaginian people held their section of what is now Tunis as far back as their African history has been revealed.

Under the Barcas family (Hasdrubal, Hamilcar, Hannibal, etc.) Carthage was a great center of wealth and commerce, with a population which has been estimated variously between 700,000 and 1,000,000.

The buildings of Carthage prior to its destruction by the Romans, in 146 B. C., were in some cases seven stories high.

From the accounts of Cato the Elder, the implacable foe of the city, whose "Delenda est Carthago" is unforgettable, the construction of the city must have been of admirable soundness—in fact, such that the conflagration of sixteen days can scarcely have demolished entirely the gigantic edifices and strong foundations. It is expected that part of these will be found intact at a great excavated depth.

The utter devastation and obliteration of Carthage which for centuries following the Punic wars were thought to have taken place have been recently contradicted by exploration. Over the ruins long untouched dirt and sand had drifted, but mercifully preserving innumerable objects of art which escaped destruction.

Twenty, forty, and sixty feet below the surface have been unearthed the vestiges of the Byzantine, Roman and Phoenician occupations. In this work have been engaged the explorers Gauckler, Merlin and Poinssot, of the Service des Antiquites, but the most notable efforts have been those of Pere Delattre, who, with exceedingly meager resources, has labored over the ruins for fifty years. He has discovered four of the earliest Christian basilicas, Roman and Punic necropolises, an amphitheater, and many priceless relics, but during this long period of arduous search he has actually explored only one-tenth of Roman and Christian Carthage. Lately, under Count de Prorok, remains previously located by Pere Delattre have been completely excavated.

Temple of Tanit Uncovered.

The most sensational discovery lately was the Temple of Tanit by the amateur archeologist, M. Icart, where human sacrifices were offered by the Carthaginians to the goddess of that name and to Baal Ammon. Literally hundreds of urns were found containing the bones of children from four to twelve years of age who had been burned alive.

The clew which led to this important discovery was supplied by an Arab, who was seen digging for stone inscriptions near the location of the Punic ports for the purpose of selling them to tourists. Operations were undertaken near by and inscriptions were found to the deities mentioned and a large field of stiles bearing the pagan symbol of fertility, a crescent reversed over a disk or triangle.

Below this site were the urns, which were about twelve inches high, of red or white terra cotta, with handles and wide mouths sealed with yellow clay. Besides the bones of children were those of lambs and birds here and there. The name of the child sacrificed appeared on the stile immediately above.

The altars unearthed at the lowest level were undoubtedly of Egyptian origin. Rectangular silver tablets engraved with squatting sphinxes, and amulets of bluish stone representing the eye of Osiris and covered with Egyptian hieroglyphics conclusively demonstrated the one-time influence and probable presence of that race. There is ground for the belief that Baal Ammon was originally the Ammon Ra of the Egyptians.

Ellenville Man Held for Forgery

And Violation of the Postal Laws Together with Three Others—Expect to Arrest Ten or Twelve More.

New York, Nov. 15 (AP).—Four men said by police to be members of an organized band of forgers who operated in upstate summer resorts today were held for forgery and violation of the postal laws.

They were Morris Levine of Ellenville, N. Y.; Adolph Leinwald, Max Freed and Morris Harnlein of Brooklyn. Postal inspectors said they expected to arrest ten or twelve more members of the gang.

The four were captured as a result of information obtained after the arrest last week of Solomon Bisgaier, Brooklyn real estate operator, who was said to have split profits of $500,000 from wholesale forgeries. Detectives said the men would mingle with guests at summer resort hotels in Sullivan and Orange counties, cashing checks for new found friends, and thus obtain their signatures which were used subsequently on forged checks.

Brutal Murder of High School Girl

Three Released After Questioning. Recluse Held For Further Examination—Shot In Back of The Head.

Portage, Wis., Nov. 15 (AP).—Three of four persons questioned in connection with the slaying of Helen Leng, 15-year-old high school freshman, were free today. The fourth, Tom Chamberlain, aged recluse, faced further examination by the district attorney.

After an all night search, when the girl failed to return after attending a theatre Sunday evening with a chum, June Moran, her body was found by William McLaughlin.

She had been shot in the back of the head with a shot gun, her clothing torn and her face scratched and blood smeared. Physicians said she had been criminally assaulted.

Two high school boys and a man from Lodi, nearby, whose name was not made public, were questioned and released last night.

The girl's father, Harry Leng, said his daughter never had been permitted out after dark unaccompanied, but that Sunday she had failed to telephone that she was leaving her chum's home alone.

Another Portage girl, Martha Bach, was attacked near the same spot last August. Nine days ago, the body of Lillian Graef, 19, of Milwaukee, who was also slain, was found near Waukwekasha. Mrs. Emma Greenwaldt, whose husband confessed plotting her death, was killed about a week ago near Dousman. The husband and an accomplice were sentenced to life imprisonment yesterday.

118 Lives Lost When Boat Sinks

Off the West Coast of India During Sudden Storm—Another Steamer Three Days Overdue.

Bombay, India, Nov. 15 (AP).—One hundred and eighteen lives are estimated to have been lost in the sinking of the steamer Tukaram of 290 tons, plying between Bombay and coastal ports. The steamer Jayanti, owned by the Bombay Cooperative Navigation Company, owners of the Tukaram, is three days overdue.

The Tukaram, carrying 82 passengers and a crew of 54, sank within three minutes during a sudden storm Saturday when seven miles off the west coast of India. The boat carried no wireless and when no news of her was received yesterday the owners sent another steamer. This vessel returned this morning with sixteen survivors who had managed to reach Janjira, about 50 miles south of here, where two more of the survivors are in a hospital suffering from injuries received in the disaster.

A number of bodies were picked up, including that of the captain. The dead and missing total 118 and there is little hope here than any of them were saved.

Two other steamers were sent to search for the Jayanti, which left Bombay November 12 for Dabol, with more than one hundred passengers and is three days overdue.

REMUS PERMITTED TO QUESTION VENIREMEN

Cincinnati, Ohio, Nov. 15 (AP).—George Remus, on trial for his life for the slaying of his second wife, today, won the right to question veniremen in selecting the jury which shall determine whether he was insane when he fired the fatal shot or shall die in the electric chair.

The prosecution sought to prevent Remus' participation along that line because insanity had been set up as a defense.

Remus won Judge Chester R. Shook's assent to the contention that not the present mental status of the defendant but his condition on October 6, only was a legal question.

14 Disasters at One Time Call for Red Cross Work

The great size of a disaster does not necessarily mean that it has the stage to itself.

The American Red Cross relief forces were impressed with this fact during the Mississippi Valley flood in recent months. While the relief forces were struggling with this greatest of all disasters in United States history, from April to June they were obliged to furnish relief in 21 other emergencies, including 11 tornadoes. In one tornado approximately 17,000 persons were assisted.

At one period the Red Cross was conducting relief operations in 14 disasters simultaneously, scattered over a wide territory.

Citing the continuity of demands on the organization's resources, Chairman John Barton Payne of the Red Cross has announced the need of 5,000,000 adult members as a result of the Roll Call, Nov. 11 to 24.

The Tenth Anniversary of America's entry into the World War in 1917, is an appropriate time to join the American Red Cross and participate through membership in its peace-time services. Join during the Annual Roll Call, November 11 to 24.

WHALE GOES WAY OF CLIPPER SHIP

Once Great Industry Is Rapidly Decreasing.

Wanganui, New Zealand.—Whales are decreasing in numbers so rapidly that they will be as scarce as sailing ships in a few years.

The New Zealand government has limited the number of whaling boats in its waters in an effort to conserve the world's stock, which is now mostly in the Ross sea.

A century ago whale catching in New Zealand waters was at its height and around 1830 the only white men in the dominion were those at the many whaling stations around the coasts of South and North islands.

Since then the Ross sea has been nearly fished dry of whales, and now only one firm is permitted to go whaling on Ross sea and Antarctic waters. The concession is held by a Norwegian firm, which pays the New Zealand government $1,000 a month and a royalty of 20 cents a gallon on whale oil obtained. It has three whalers, small, fast vessels, each equipped with a "torpedo" harpoon, and a "parent" ship of 12,000 tons equipped as a "whale factory."

Average Fifteen Feet Long.

The whales move in schools of 20. Some are large, others small but the average length of the beast is 15 feet over his back. When the chasers have their load of whales they are brought on to the "factory" for cutting up and extraction of the valuable oil and glycerin.

In the last three years whale oil production has been increasing. Down in the Ross sea the 12,000 tonner "factory" produced 711,640 gallons of oil in 1924, a year later 1,280,000 gallons and last year more than 1,500,000 gallons. These quantities form 90 per cent of the world supply of whale oil.

There are still one or two whaling stations in New Zealand home waters around Cook strait and North Auckland, but the whales there are small, known as "humpbacks," whose chasing and capture is becoming less of an industry among the crews of government chasers than a first-class sport with a thrill.

Humpback Is Strong.

The humpback, though small, is as strong as a sea elephant, and slippery. Harpooning a Cook strait whale from a gun on board a bobbing motor vessel needs nerve and an accurate eye.

In a year's whaling in Cook strait and down Marlborough channel only 48 whales were taken, worth $30,000 for their 250 tons of oil and 40 tons of bone dust.

The world's record whale—or, rather, his skeleton—is on show still in Canterbury museum. He was found stranded on Corvisart bay in the Australian bight. From the tip of the tail over back to the muzzle it measured nearly 101 feet.

Girl Tourist Thrilled by Camels and Sheiks

Marrakech, Morocco. — Morocco means camels and sheiks to the shoals of American schoolgirls who invade the country each autumn chaperoned by Paris finishing-school teachers.

Marrakech sees most of them because they find the herds here which make camel rides possible. No debutante considers her tour complete until she has been camel-riding. Sheiks are harder to find, the type being a product of the desert interiors.

The schoolgirls visit Morocco early in the fall, at the Christmas holiday or late in the spring. Marrakech the Red, under the shadows of the high Atlas, is the only city where camels in numbers may be obtained, and so the girls do most of their camel-riding here. Only the freight-carrying type of animal is available.

There are no swift "ships of the desert" for the young tourists. But that does not detract from the enjoyment of the flappers, to whom any camel is a camel.

Stage Talk Shocks Hard-Boiled Mayor

Grimsby, England.—Grimsby trawlers have pretty rough crews and the language along the water front of this fishing center is not always refined.

But after attending two performances at leading theaters in London Mayor Ormond of Grimsby came home and announced that the language of the London stage was too much for him.

"In one play," said Mayor Ormond, "there was an admiral who used an expletive about a golf club for which he would have been kicked out of an ordinary room."

Flagpole Perching May Be Barred on the Coast

Los Angeles, Calif.—The police commission has addressed a letter to the city council asking passage of an ordinance to prohibit the "silly practice of flagpole sitting as immoral and dangerous to public safety." Several sitting spells have occurred here recently, the last of which featured on a flagpole above a downtown dance palace.

Jellyfish as Food

Jellyfish excite our interest because of their beautiful coloring. We never think of them as food. Yet jellyfish are eaten in Japan and the [illegible] islands. Flavored with condiments, the fish is very appetizing. In ages past the jellyfish was also relished as far north as Cornwall, England.

Getting Criminal Calendar Ready

Cases Called in County Court, But None Found Ready—Trial Term Probably Will Begin Wednesday.

An adjourned session of the county court was convened Monday afternoon at the court house with County Judge Joseph M. Fowler presiding. The criminal calendar for the term was called and an effort made by District Attorney Traver to make up a calendar of cases to be tried. Nothing was found ready until Wednesday and the jurors were excused until 10 o'clock Wednesday. Court went into recess until this morning at 10 o'clock.

The first case on the calendar, The People vs. Benjamin Washington, will be disposed of without trial. Daniel Murphy and Mr. Lahey of Highland appeared for the defendant. After a consultation they decided to dispose of the case without trial at a later date.

The second case, The People vs. Billy King, a charge of robbery, was announced ready Wednesday for trial. F. W. Brooks, who appears for Billy, will be engaged in court until that date. That will probably be the first case to be tried. She is charged with having held up and robbed a downtown man recently.

In the case of The People vs. Guiseppi Starheri, murder, second degree, Walter J. Miller, who appears for the defendant, asked for time to prepare as he had but recently taken over the defense.

Other cases were found not ready and in many of the cases in which indictments were returned this fall motions were made to put them over on pleas of more time needed by counsel to prepare for trial.

The indictment against Martin Ryan and Charles Sleight will be considered Wednesday. William H. Grogan appears for the defendants. This case will probably not be tried.

The case of The People vs. Louis Kersner, growing out of a motorcycle accident, an old case on the calendar, will either have to be tried at this term or the indictment dismissed. In this case there was a civil action brought and that matter has long since been settled. William A. Kaercher appears for defendant.

Practically all of the cases on the calendar were reported ready when reached by District Attorney Traver.

Present indications point to a short term of criminal trial work.

Duck of a Dinner For Live Wires

Kingston Division of Central Hudson Gas and Electric Company Dines and Dances in Celebration of Winning Prize in Light Selling Campaign.

Employes of the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Company and their guests to the total number of 135 celebrated the triumph of the Kingston division in the recent lamp selling contest by attending a dinner and dance at the Golden Rule Inn Monday evening. Of course Kingston had the biggest part in the party but there were delegations present from Newburgh and Poughkeepsie, and the Golden Rule duck pond was materially depleted before the visitors were ready to dance to the music of Paul Zucca's tireless terpsichorean ticklers under the bright lights of the Golden Rule dining room, one of the finest in this vicinity. Everyone agreed that it was a duck of a dinner to dance after.

Mr. Dexter of Poughkeepsie, who was in charge of the campaign, presided at the dinner and did very little talking. Other speakers followed his example of brevity, so there was nothing to mar the end of a perfect day and, as they used to say in the newspapers many years ago, "a good time was had by all present". Many of the men brought guests, their wives, daughters, sisters or, failing to have either, someone else's sister.

Some time ago the powers that reign over the Gas and Electric Company decided that people were entirely too improvident in the matter of having spare lighting bulbs on hand and that the proper thing to do for the mutual benefit of all concerned was to put on a bulb selling drive. They set the mark at 5,000 kits of bulbs and offered prizes to those who sold the greatest number and a dinner to all in the district selling the greatest number who had sold at least 10 kits. The result was the sale of a total of 7,274 kits, of which Kingston sold 2,769, which was 160 per cent of its quota.
